

Society for Public Health Education's Health Disparities Webinar Series

ON THE ROAD FROM RESEARCH TO PRACTICE: ELIMINATING RACIAL & ETHNIC HEALTH DISPARITIES

SAVE THE DATES

*July 25, 2006 2:00 p.m.—3:00 p.m. (E.T.)
August 29, 2006 2:00 p.m.—3:00 p.m. (E.T.)*

Join the Society for Public Health Education (SOPHE) for a provocative Webinar series that will explore the role of health education research and practice in addressing the complex factors associated with racial and ethnic health disparities. This two-part series will showcase the release of SOPHE's complementary journals on this topic, Health Education & Behavior and Health Promotion Practice, based on SOPHE's meeting "Health Disparities and Social Inequities: Framing a Transdisciplinary Research Agenda in Health Education." Hear presentations and commentary by contributing authors. Lessons from the latest Health Promotion Practice supplement on CDC's Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH) 2010 program will also be featured.

- Learn how health educators, health researchers, information specialists, health professionals, policy makers, and community members can take ACTION to help eliminate racial and ethnic health disparities.
- Health educators can earn up to 2 Category I Continuing Education Contact Hours by participating in both events.
- Enroll today for this FREE professional development program – visit <http://www.sophe.org> for additional information, and <http://sagepublications.webex.com> to enroll for these events
